Peter Pan, the Class Play of the out-going senior class of 1936, will be presented in the open-air theatre on Monday night, June 1, at 8:15 P. M. by the Dramatic Club, under the direction of Miss Roberta Barnett. Mary Frances Rowe will take the lead as Peter Pan. Miss Rowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frances Rowe, who is a senior, has been prominent in many college affairs. She has edited the Battlefield for two successive years, and she likewise has been selected by the student body as one of the most outstanding girls for the past two years. She is also a member of various organizations on the Hill including the Dramatic Club, International Relations Club, Press Club, English Club, Leaders Club, Alpha Phi Sigma and Town Girls' Club.

The role of "Wendy" will be played by Miss Olivia Wheeler; Mr. and Mrs. Darling by Misses Ruby Lee Norris and Stuart Jones, respectively. Miss Rita Miller will enact the part of John and Miss Betty Robinson will appear as Michael. The boys in Never-Never Land are Tootles (Miss Thelma Evans); Slightly, (Miss Sparks Brewer); and Nibs, (Miss Billie Shelton.) International Relations Club Presents "The Melting Pot" As Convocation Feature

"The Melting Pot," celebrating World Goodwill Day was presented by members of the International Relations Club at Convocation on May 18.

The scene was laid at Ellis Island where groups from various countries were waiting for admittance to the United States. Mr. Oscar H. Darter, sponsor of the International Relations Club, and head of the Social Science Department, played the role of Uncle Sam who welcomed each group.

As each group came into the "Melting Pot," each one told what he was bringing from his country to contribute to America. Ethel Nelson, as the Statue of Liberty, kept watch over all.

Finally, all the immigrants appeared on the stage as American citizens and pledged their allegiance to the American flag.

Co-Ed Prom Proves Feature of Dance

Palms and peonies in the theme of the French, pale pink and red, decorated the roof garden at the first Co-Ed Junior-Senior Prom, which was led by Miss Alice Phillips and Mr. Conrad Logan of Randolph-Macon, assisted by Miss Margaret Moore, president of the Senior Class, and Mr. Stuart Smith of V.P.I.

The dancing lasted from 9 until 12 with music furnished by the Marshall Rotella orchestra from Richmond. There were fourteen dances after the same fashion of the German dances. During intermission, refreshments were served at Seacoack Hall on the veranda, with ten tables attractively arranged in the same French theme, the self-service in the delicious refreshments consisting of French cookies and punch.

The patrons for the prom were the following professors and their wives: Dr. M. L. Combs, Dr. J. H. Dodd, Dr. Edward Alvery, Dr. C. G. G. Moss, and the Dean of Women, Mrs. C. L. Bushnell.

burg and Newport News, Virginia. Following the adjournment of the association, a dance will be held on the roof garden, for all girls attending the banquet, and their escorts. This will be an informal dance and will culminate the celebration of the Silver Anniversary of the first class to graduate from the college in 1911. Girls majoring in the various phases of Home Economics will serve at the banquet for the alumnae, Saturday night.

Seniors 'Ring' Juniors During Novel Exercise

Goats Are Presented With Cup For First Time In Four Years. New Alumnae Announced

Seniors became alumnae; juniors became seniors; sophomores, juniors; and freshman, sophomores at "Moving Up" Exercises last Monday evening in the open air theatre.

Each class formed in a double line on the central campus, and led by the freshman, moved down the hill toward the amphitheatre.

The seniors in their caps and gowns marched through an arch formed by the freshman, sophomores and juniors. They were followed through the arch by the juniors, then the sophomores, and lastly the freshmen.

The seniors took their places on the stage of the theatre. Miss Margaret Moore, president of the senior class, bequeathed the presidency of the senior class of 1937 to Miss Alice Phillips. Miss Phillips, president of the junior class, bequeathed her presidency to Miss Jean Plante. The presidency of the sophomore class was bequeathed by its president Miss Elizabeth Trimble, to Miss Mary Burgess.

Following this, Mrs. Bushnell presented the cup to the "Goats," who had not won it for several years.

To the singing of Alma Mater, the student body, led by the seniors, filed past the home of the president, and then back down the road toward the dormitories.

Each junior according to the tradition, knelt before a senior and was duly presented with her class ring and the cap of that particular senior. This ceremony characterizes "moving-up" dag on the "hill." It's the dag.

There are a number of extensive courses which include the same subjects as winter school, but given in a shorter time.

There are approximately 250 who have signed, but it is rather difficult to determine the exact number of applicants at present. Provisions for women as well as men are made in the school.

Unbroken Record

If for nothing else the graduating class can go out with their heads high because of one very special record they set long ago—Their daisy chain came thru in record time. Four years ago early one Friday morning they tramped from their beds and with slumber still in their eyes began to pull daisies. Haunted but undaunted in the tradition of one class working until two o'clock in the morning and another that hadn't finished at breakfast time but ate their toast as they put on the finishing touches that class of '36 started to work with a will. Trucks left loaded with girls and came back loaded with daisies. They were eagerly snatched, put in tubs of water until everything on the hill that would hold water was full. Those who had not gone searching for the delicate white blooms in the surrounding country-side began making tiny nosegays, binding them with wire until an unblistered finger was a rare thing to see. The piles of daisies there on the plot north of Monroe Hall grew smaller and smaller—more and more of the heavy manilla foundation of the chain was being hidden by the white clusters. Thousands of daisies were hauled in, miles of wire disappeared. Three hundred backs seemed on the verge of breaking but at nine o'clock that night the last daisy was fastened in place and amid much cheering another record was broken. That record still stands—the best time ever made on a daisy chain. The present freshman class is promising to smash it to bits. The seniors have their doubts. But all the college is looking forward to Sunday because it is a lot of fun and one of the loveliest traditions of the campus. Those people who haven't heard the laughter, the squabbles and jokes that are woven into the daisy chain have missed a great deal.

Sprinkling Springtime

Iris, roses and cuterbubs bloom in the spring—not to mention daisies—but there is another member of this spring family. That peculiar genus, the sprinkler. A spray of roses is colorful but the spray of a sprinkler is something not to be forgotten, and most of us have gotten it many times as we righteously sought to stay within our rights and keep to the bricks on our way to classes. Whereas the utility, in fact, necessity, of that dampish whirligig is not to be denied, its proximity is a matter to be questioned.

It seems that the growth and propagation of brick walks does not depend upon careful watching—were it so there would long since have been a paved brick walk extending from the college to beside Kenmore.

Beneath the rays of the rising, shining or setting sun the sprinkler continues to sprinkle and the whirligig continues to whirl. By the light of the moon one can hear the constant purr of falling drops—and what, I ask you, is more disconcerting than to walk all unawares into the neighborhood of that particular watering agent? Or, in an attempt to sidestep that unseen purring noise which, we feel, denotes the location of our particular enemy to inadvertently step into a muddy spot or budding river.

Sprinklers may look alike to most people but to one who has made any acquaintance with them they may be found to have decidedly different personalities. There is, for instance, that one which looks for all the world like a revolving French phone. Then there is the one that wheezes with every breath and flings octopus-like tentacles in six directions. One, having higher aspirations than some others has been found high in a tree dutifully spraying from above the unappreciative pedestrian.

Now In Fashion

Let's get ready for summer!!! For cool summer evenings: The aviator's coat, knee-length and flaring just enough to attract attention to itself and the wearer, is the last word, and it is certainly more practical than the long coat.

Linen for suits, street dresses and for evening wear will be worn all summer long. Many of the smartest suits have linen jackets and crepe or wool skirts. Here is a tricky ensemble. A white linen brocade jacket with square looped revers, which fits tightly at the waist. The navy blue

CLUB ACTIVITIES

On May 7, the Home Economics Club held its last regular meeting of the year. At the short business meeting which preceded the program, Genevieve Tyson was elected vice-president; Charlotte Fraiser, secretary-treasurer, and Katherine Turner, reporter. These girls have shown great interest in the club and will be seniors next year.

The program which followed the election was devoted to a discussion of "Etiquette." Nona Higgins gave an interesting summary of the most used "rules of society." She included in her talk an entertaining account of a tea at the White House. Nancy Powell discussed the peculiar customs in foreign countries.

The installation of the president for next year, Rubenette Young, was held after the program. She was installed by the out-going president, Mildred Ware. Miss Young is very popular in the club and has been one of the most outstanding members since her freshman year.

ENGLISH CLUB

On Tuesday, May 12, the English Club held its final meeting of the year. The program was entitled "All's Well that Ends Well." It included the following: Current Events, Juanita Owen and Virginia Snidow; Synopsis of the play, Betty Reid; Criticism of the play, Ida Lee Twiss.

Betty Osborn was elected the head of the club for the coming year.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

Goodwill was the general theme of the program given by the I.R.C. at Convocation, Wednesday, May 20. Stuart Jones discussed the History and Significance of Goodwill Day. Betty Osborn made the prayer. The program included the entire club illustrated very colorfully, the contributions of foreign countries in the melting pot of America.

DRAMATIC CLUB

The new head of the Dramatic Club for the coming year elected Monday, May 10, was Alice Dew. The other officers were: vice-president, Elizabeth Clark; secretary-treasurer, Nita Owens.

A hay-ride was enjoyed by the

"LATE DATE" PARTY

A "Late Date" Party was given by the Sophomores for their "Big Sisters," the Seniors, last Wednesday night at 10:15. The front East entrance of Monroe Hall was set up with long tables, attractively decorated with candles and delectable "eats." The entrance was illuminated by a large spot light.

Long lines of Goats ravenously enjoyed the quantities of food prepared by members of the Sophomore Class. The refreshments carried out the Senior Class colors of green and white.

wool skirt has an inverted pleat down the center front. This is laced up over the stomach with a fine string of fabric that ties through eyelets in the plain white linen blouse, thus keeping everything shipshape.

A lovely linen evening suit was recently seen in Washington. It was in leaf-brown and white sheer print with an enormously wide, floor-length umbrella gored skirt and short jacket, a brief over blouse of brown organdie, reaching barely to the hip bones and a printed linen sash.

If you're going to the beach you must have play togs, and the culotte seems to be the thing; that grand divided skirt that comes barely below the knees is the most talked of sports costume of the season. It can be used for tennis, golf, or general beach wear. Something quite exciting is a quilted cotton beach coat which is zipped under the arms. When opened it makes a beach mat,

Dramatic Club Friday, May 22. Ruth McIntire was in charge of the outing. The destination of the club was Little Falls just outside of Fredericksburg.

THE Y. W. C. A.

The Y.W.C.A. is to be well represented at the annual conference of the Y. W.'s and Y. M.'s from all over the South. Four members of the Y. W.'s and Y. M.'s from all the Cabinet and three Freshman Commissioners are planning to attend the meeting at Blue Ridge, N. C. They are: Cabinet members—President, Frank Nash; Treasurer, Frances Sherman; Freshman Commissioner, Flora Ryan; Secretary, Zonie Compton. Freshman Commissioners—Vespers Chairman, Helton Hyde; Entertainment Chairman, Maude Rae Smith; Campus Social Service Chairman, Millie Gillam.

For the past four years, the outgoing and in-coming Cabinets have had their annual Retreat at Mr. W. M. Hamlet's Cabin about twelve miles outside of Fredericksburg. To show their appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Hamlet, a small gift will be presented them. During the Retreat this year, Julia Frances Robinson was presented with three lovely books by the old and new Cabinets as a token of their gratitude for her fine leadership this year.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The leaders of A. A. for the coming year were elected at the last regular meeting of the association as follows: President, Peggy Smith; Vice-President, Elizabeth Johnson; Secretary, Sparks Brewer; Treasurer, Peck McClaugherty; Chairman of Sports, Dorothy Ball; Hockey Chairman, Elizabeth Clark; Basketball Chairman, Edna King; Swimming Chairman, Cheatham Taylor; Hiking Chairman, Ellen Easterly; Horseback Riding Chairman, Dorothy Hill; Baseball Chairman, Jo Grant; Tennis Chairman, Mary Kettenbeck; Gold and Archery Chairman, Regina Brown; Dance Chairman, Margaret Clark; Cabin Chairman, Alice Rife; Reporter, Helen Hyde.

Frosh's Attention

By EVELYN RIGGS

Half a mile, half a mile,
Half a mile onward,
All in the hills and vales
Will trip the Three Hundred.

Forward the Freshman Class,
Flucking the daisy mass
Into the daisy fields
Will trip the Three Hundred.

Daisies to right of them
Daisies in front of them
Pulled at and plundered.

They'll make the daisy chain
Whether 'tis sun or rain
Onto the top so long
They'll bind the daisies strong;
With laughter and gay song
Will work the Three Hundred.

Half a yard, half a yard,
Half a yard onward,
From dawn until midnight
Will toll the Three Hundred.

Then when the chain is done,
They'll have their laurels won;
They will have had so much fun—
This Freshman Three Hundred.

With appologies to Tennyson.

Sophomore champion, Mary Kettenbeck, 7-3 and 6-0.

Helen Hyde, the Freshman champion, won second place for the Devils in a three-set match by defeating Kay Dryden, the Junior title holder. The score of these sets were 6-2, 3-6 and 6-2 in favor of Hyde.

These tennis matches are sponsored each spring by the Athletic Association. This year Miss Katherine Dryden, who is manager of tennis for the A. A. supervised these games. From a group participation a winner from each class was determined by elimination matches. Following this decision the class champions competed for places. The final Devil-Goat match was won by Marshall Schools representing the Goat team.

One little Piggie might go to market and another one stay at home and Frank Nash wouldn't ever care; but when one little "Hoggi" from North Carolina decides to come to Fredericksburg to attend the Jr. Sr. Prom, well, just the thought of it gets her excited. That's why Frank was so wishy-washy that nite of the I.R.C. convocation program. A

But, Coda, where were you?

It's bad enough to lose everything (but weight), but it's much worse to lose something, know someone has it and is looking for the owner, and yet not be able to claim it. Council has a black Shaeffer Jr. pen belonging to a certain student. The student decided it was best to keep her reputation and lose the pen than vice versa so she still has the reputation and the council still has the pen. Don't worry, I won't let you down by giving your name.

Corrine Cutchins and Blanche Davies were so engrossed in their conversation one rainy morning that they didn't see a sprinkler and when they changed their course to get out of the way of a puddle they walked plum into it.

Mr. Smith, the photographer, was taking pictures for the riding club. While trying to get one of a horse about to jump over a hurdle he was greatly surprised to see the horse change its mind and sense of direction and head straight for him. Jane Carroll after studying history for quite some time went up to Betty Garden's room and in a joking way asked Betty, who was evidently not quite "there," "How would you like to date Stonewall Jackson," Betty looked up and said, "Oh, I don't know. Is he a town boy?"

Bill Easley asked me if I wouldn't put in a plea for her to the readers of the Bulletin. It seems Dot Chesire, whom Bill would have you believe is a horrid old meany, took her 120 word shorthand pin from her. "Even though Dot did win it, it's mine" said Bill. So if any of you readers can convince Dot that what is hers should be Bill's, please do so.

VARSITY-FACULTY GAME

Again there was a good-sized crowd out to see the Varsity Faculty game which was won by the Varsity Squad, 6-4.

The center of attraction was the uncanny pitching by Dr. Moss, the faculty player who incidentally covered all the bases, too. The pitching a la Moss was so imposing that the faculty players were looking forward to a closer score.

In the first of the third inning the score was 3-3; however, toward the last of the inning the Varsity Squad made a two-run tally, making the score 6-2. Due to an error on a passed ball over second, the faculty scored one more run in their last inning which left the final score 6-4 in favor of the varsity team.

POSITIONS SECURED

And now once again the school year is nearing the end. For many it is the fourth year, which means that they are through going to school as students. They have been, and are seeking a place for themselves.

Among those who have already secured positions and appointments are Alma Baily and Helen Battista who will be teaching next year on native soil in Connecticut. Mary Frances Rowe and Frances Gaines will have their addresses in Alexandria, Va., after next September. Nancy Browning will enter the home economics field further in Warren next year. Fairfax county schools will be the richer for the services of Adelle Mansfield who will lend her efforts there next year.

Mildred Ware has received an appointment to Johns-Hopkins and will take up her duties there in July. Mrs. Nona Deckert Higgins has received an appointment to the Emergency hospital in Washington.

Margaret Moore will pursue her studies further at the Temple University in Philadelphia.

There are others in the graduating classes who have received appointments, and many are being lined up for positions as the days pass.

Battlefield Park Will Be Scene of Riding Club Show

The Riding Club of State Teachers' College will hold their annual Horse Show in the instruction arena at Pastime Academy in Battlefield Park on Saturday, May 30.
Fifty members of the club expect to compete in the classes which will be for beginning, intermediate and advanced equitation; a jumping class of blue-ribbon winners to decide the outstanding rider of S.T.C. Mr. Joseph Ulman is presenting a cup to the winner of the consolation class, composed of intermediate and advanced riders who have never won a ribbon in any show.
Attractive trophies will be presented besides ribbons to those who take first place in every class. See Mr. Ulman's window on display of trophies and riding club pictures. Faculty, students and patrons of the college are cordially invited to attend.

New Officers and Miss Bowling Goes Over

The Riding Club next year will be under the capable management of these three young women. Jacquelin Smith, president; Henrietta Pratt, vice-president; and Dorothy Ramey, secretary-treasurer. All have reached the first level of attainment in the club and are equally recognized for their leadership and ability. They will take part in the Horse Show to be held today in Battlefield Park. Many new plans are under way to make the club a big success next year, and they can do it.

Here is graceful Eulalia Bowling as she takes her mount over one of the obstacles on the course. It makes the members of the riding club thrill at such poise and manner. "She sails through the air..."
